“CHILDREN WITH TRUST AND HOPE”

“Trust yourself, you will start to trust others” – Santosh Kalwar

Trust is the foundation for everything we do and that if we can learn to trust one another more, we can have unprecedented human progress. These following points will help us to trust in ourselves and boost the trust in others:

- T: Take turns to talk about what you are going to do
- R: Recap the plan as you are working
- U: Use lots of encouragement
- S: Share and talk about experiences that will help
- T: Tune in and be

“To live without hope is to cease to live.” – Fyodor Dostoyevsky

To have hope is to want an outcome that makes your life better in some way. It is not only can help make a tough present situation more bearable but also can eventually improve our lives because envisioning a better future motivates you to take the steps to make it happen.

Whether we think about it or not, hope is a part of everyone’s life. Everyone hopes for something. It’s an inherent part of being a human being. Hope helps us define what we want in our future and is part of the self-narrative about our lives we will have running inside our minds.

During this Pandemic our children had the chance of practicing trust and hope. Trusting in themselves and others, trusting in the goodness of God and in their capacities and the abilities of whom they are living with. Hope against hope that things will be turning to good and things will come to normalcy.
